

Process of enrolling children in kindergartens simplified by Government

Online enrollment of children in kindergartens will become simpler and faster. Government has approved e-Admission Information System Concept in general education, the early education level.

The new system will allow children to be enrolled in a unified way at the national level and will make the admission process more transparent and fair. It will also reduce the risk of errors, duplications or preferential treatment. Other advantages include increased access to early education and reduced bureaucratic interaction between citizens and institutions.

The initiative is part of efforts to digitalize and debureaucratize processes in the education. Everyone will benefit: on the one hand, parents, and on the other hand, the staff of educational institutions, who will spend less time on paperwork and will have more time for children and for organizing the educational process.
